

Environmental Science and Pollution Research

Supporting Information for

Performance of Butyl Rubber-Based Macroporous Sorbents as Passive Samplers

Oktay E. TUREYEN^{1*}, Atilla YILMAZ¹, Sevil D. YAKAN¹, Berkant YETISKIN², Oguz OKAY², and Oya S. OKAY¹

¹Department of Ocean Engineering, Istanbul Technical University, 34469 Maslak, Istanbul, Turkey.

²Department of Chemistry, Istanbul Technical University, 34469 Maslak, Istanbul, Turkey

*Corresponding author: E-mail: tureyen@itu.edu.tr, Tel +905340686447

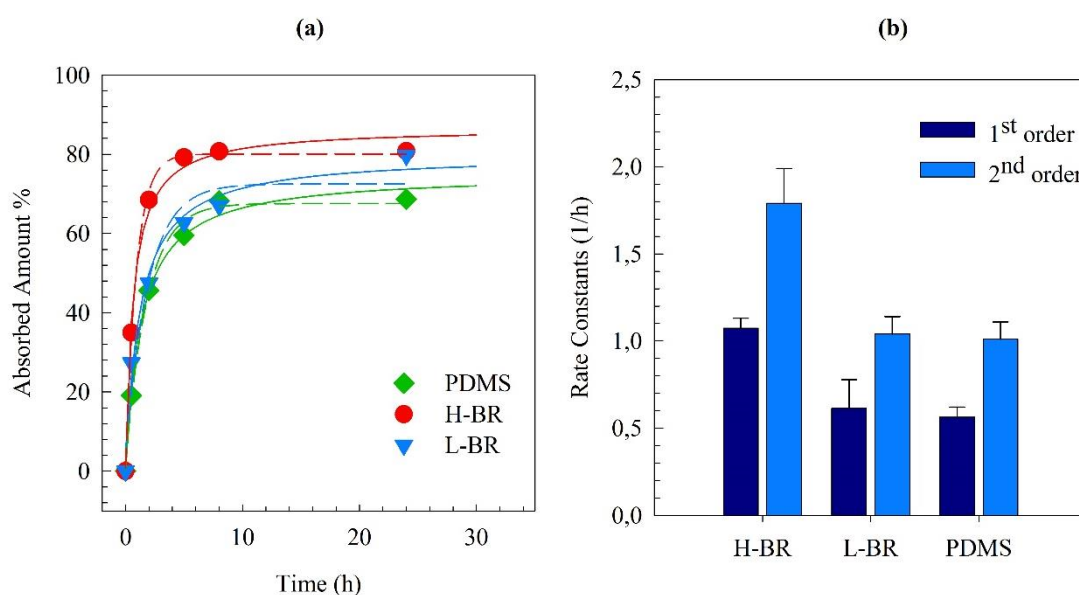

Figure S1: Comparison of first and second-order kinetics for curve fitting a) Experimental data from short term naphthalene absorption of samplers during the first 24 h (symbols), and the results of curve fitting using the first (dashed curves) and second-order sorption kinetics (solid curves). b) Comparison of rate constants calculated with first and second order kinetics.